Business education has become an increasingly competitive area, for instance nearly 200 business schools operate within Europe. What makes a business training stand out from the rest?

Our Faculty is a member of the European Foundation for Management Development and our BSc in Business Administration and Management program gained EFMD programme accreditation based on a high-quality criteria, deserving of using the brand label: EFMD Accredited. O

This year our School has successfully extended its programme accreditation awarded in 2020, as the first countryside university in Hungary, by the EFMD, one of the most prestigious organisations for the qualification of international business management programmes.

Our program accreditation is based on five strong pillars, the already mentioned programme label, secondly the global recognition which provides us an international market recognition, thirdly the international benchmarking – by being compared with other institutions and reviewed by an international peer review team.

The forth pillar is the strategic advice and guidance as well as institutional development which guides us for outstanding quality improvement.

And finally we became the part of the international learning community, facilitating the sharing of good practice.”

DISTANCE LEARNING PROGRAM

The Faculty also offers its students the opportunity to complete its distance learning BSc and MSc programs run in cooperation with the Fernuniversität Hagen.

Both of these programs are conducted in German and students receive their degrees from both institutions:

- BSc in Business Administration and Economics
- MSc in Business Administration and Economics
